David Geffen School of Drama Deans

Who Does What

Together, the deans work on strategic and administrative planning to keep David Geffen School of Drama/Yale Repertory Theatre accountable to its values in pursuit of our academic and artistic mission.

While you may bring suggestions, issues, questions, or concerns to any of the deans, here is a general breakdown of who does what:

Dean/Artistic Director
James Bundy reports directly to Yale University President and Provost who have charged him with establishing strategy, goals, and objectives for the School and Yale Repertory Theatre, and providing overall leadership to both. He serves with other deans and vice-presidents in the University Cabinet, and is ultimately responsible for the training programs in all disciplines at the School, as well as productions at the School and Yale Rep, with direct oversight of artistic, development and alumni affairs. Working with the Associate Dean/Managing Director, he shares oversight of production, safety and occupational health. With the other three deans he serves on the financial aid committee. He teaches in the Acting Program and in Yale College’s Theater Studies Program.

Associate Dean/Managing Director
Florie Seery oversees most administrative functions of the School and Yale Rep including artistic budgeting and contracting; finance and human resources; marketing and communications; general management; production; safety and occupational health. With the other three deans she serves on the financial aid committee. She teaches in the Theater Management Program and serves as an advisor and supervisor of management students in professional work assignments.

Associate Dean
Chantal Rodriguez is responsible for student life generally, and especially in her roles as Title IX Coordinator and Discrimination and Harassment Resource Coordinator. She is also the liaison to the School’s student affinity groups and School of Drama Student Government (SDSG). She oversees the coordination of Orientation and Seminar Week and, with the Assistant Dean, coordinates visiting international artists and scholars. She serves on the financial aid committee, and directly oversees the Registrar and Financial Aid Office. She teaches in the Dramaturgy and Dramatic Criticism Program and serves as an academic and production advisor.

Assistant Dean/General Manager
Kelvin Dinkins, Jr. coordinates faculty recruitment, appointment, promotion and leave processes with the Provost’s Office. He oversees student recruitment working with department chairs. As general manager for Yale Rep he supervises facility operations, coordinates Beinecke Fellows, advises the Dwight/Edgewood Program, and works with the Associate Dean/Managing Director in all aspects of production activity and administration. With the other three deans he serves on the financial aid committee. He teaches in the Theater Management Program and serves as an advisor and supervisor of management students in their professional work assignments.